1969 . . . Reflections of a changing year

Political, social, and scientific changes in the world were reflected in Hamilton Heights High School. Students and faculty gained new insights into the outside world by meeting Heights' first foreign exchange student. Through a mock election, students showed their interest in the Presidential campaign. In the classroom, students discussed racial and social strife. Seniors in Science Investigation and Research ventured into special fields of study.

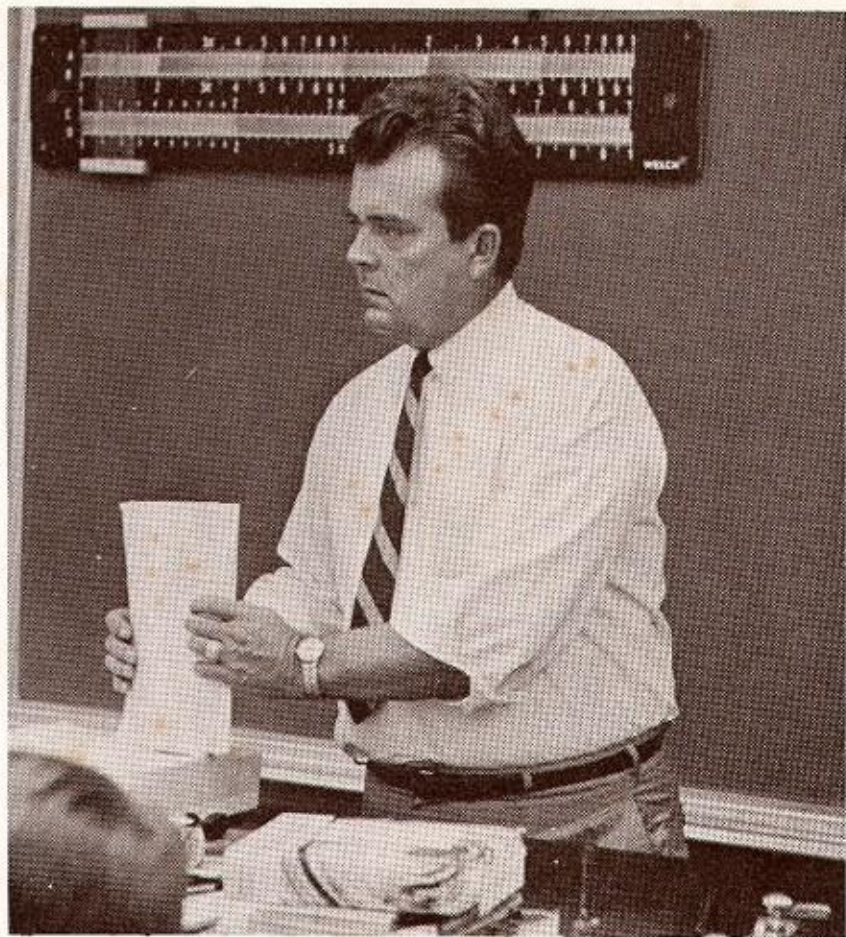

Further changes at Hamilton Heights were reflected in new teachers, courses, and equipment. Ten new teachers became acquainted with the Hamilton Heights' curriculum, while in the language, social studies, and science departments, new courses challenged students. The business and industrial arts departments improved and expanded with the addition of new equipment. For the world and Hamilton Heights, 1969 was a year of change.

Prom reflected changes, new traditions begun

Several changes were reflected in the Junior-Senior Prom given by the Class of '69. One tradition begun was the election of a Prom Queen from chosen senior candidates. Another change was adult-sponsored post-prom activities; and for the first time, sophomore girls served as hostesses at the Prom.

Autograph Dance was a successful new idea

Another change carried out was that of having an Autograph Dance sponsored by the HERITAGE staff. The price of admission was the receipt proving that the holder had purchased a yearbook. After getting the book, few students had time to dance, however. Instead, every moment was spent signing yearbooks or leafing through the book to see the new and exciting things inside.

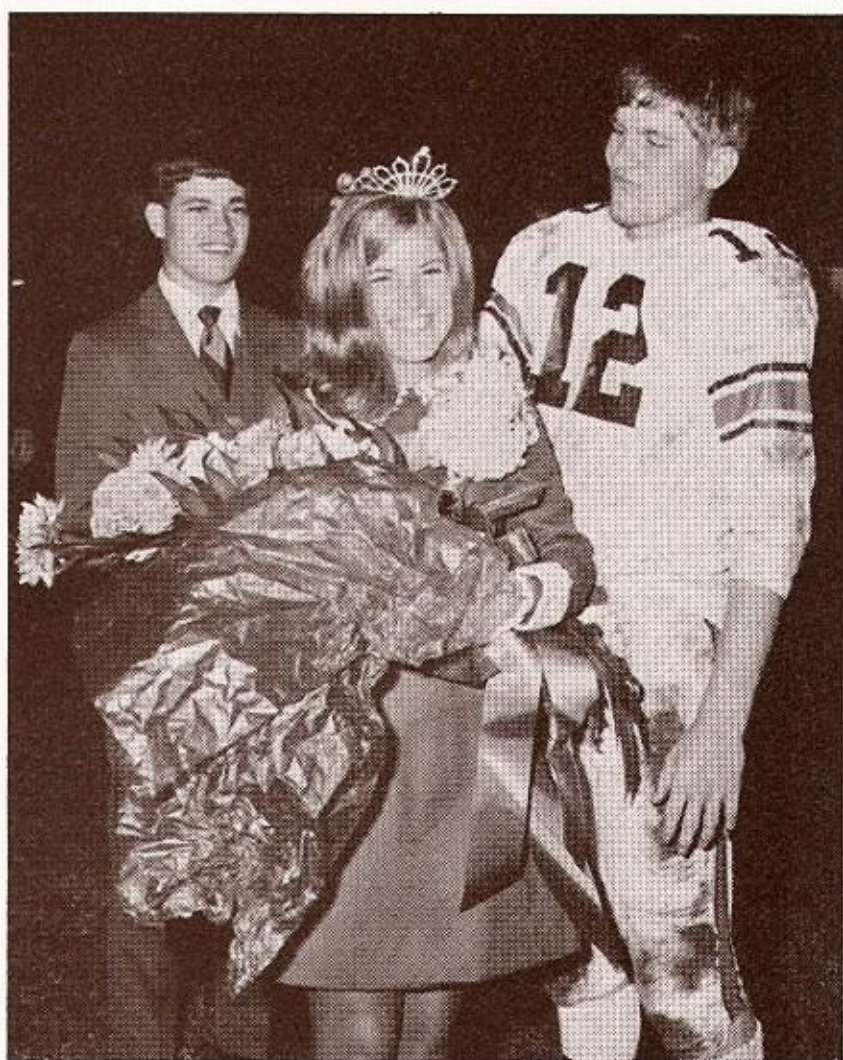

Girls stop signing yearbooks long enough to dance just once.

Reflections of Football Homecoming appeared in the glowing, anticipating eyes of the queen candidates, the impressive handmade floats, and the clashing helmets of the football players. At the Homecoming bonfire, students rallied and boosted the Huskies on to victory. Adding to the gala, class floats, queen candidates, the band, and other personalities paraded the streets of Arcadia. During half time of the football game, Tony Cook crowned Marianna Haddock Football Homecoming Queen for 1968. For a finale, Hamilton Heights won the football game over opponent Thorntown.

Loralyn Roudebush reigned over '68-69 season

The 1968-69 Basketball Queen Coronation was held on December 7, 1968, the evening of the third home game, so that the queen could reign over the entire basketball season. For their beauty, personality, and school spirit, two girls from each class were chosen by their classmates to represent them in the pageant. At the half time of the game with Sheridan, senior Loralyn Roudebush was crowned queen by captain John Shelton. With Loralyn reigning as queen, the Huskies went on to win the game 89 to 66.

"Mistletoe-A-Go-Go" theme of holiday dance

Mistletoe-A-Go-Go, holiday dance sponsored by the Band Department, was the high point of Christmas vacation for many of the couples who attended. Reflections of the season were seen in the richly colored velvet dresses worn by many of the girls. Christmas trees, tables decorated as gaily wrapped packages, and, of course, mistletoe further reflected the holiday spirit of the evening.

Peruvian student came to Hamilton Heights

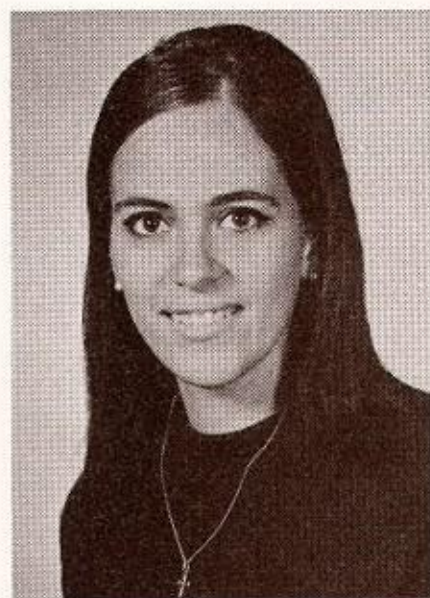

In the 1968-1969 school year, a foreign student exchange program was introduced to Hamilton Heights. The program is designed to create student interest in foreign countries and cultures and to promote better relations between countries.

Maud Adelaida Stiglich came to the United States with thirty other Peruvian exchange students in August 1968. She graduated in December, 1967, from Sacred Heart Secondary School in Lima, Peru. Maud came to Hamilton Heights to further her education and to learn about this country. Besides her studies, Maud participated in Future Homemakers of America, the Girls' Athletic Association, and the Girls' Booster Club. While she was here, Maud lived with the families of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McConnell, Mr. and Mrs. John Grinstead, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newby.

Administrators worked hard for better school

BOARD OF EDUCATION: Ben Illyes, Vice-President; Edward Costomiris, Robert Newby, Betty Mosbaugh, Treasurer; Dallas Hohnstreiter, Superintendent; Harris Sumner, President; Gene Rulon, Secretary.

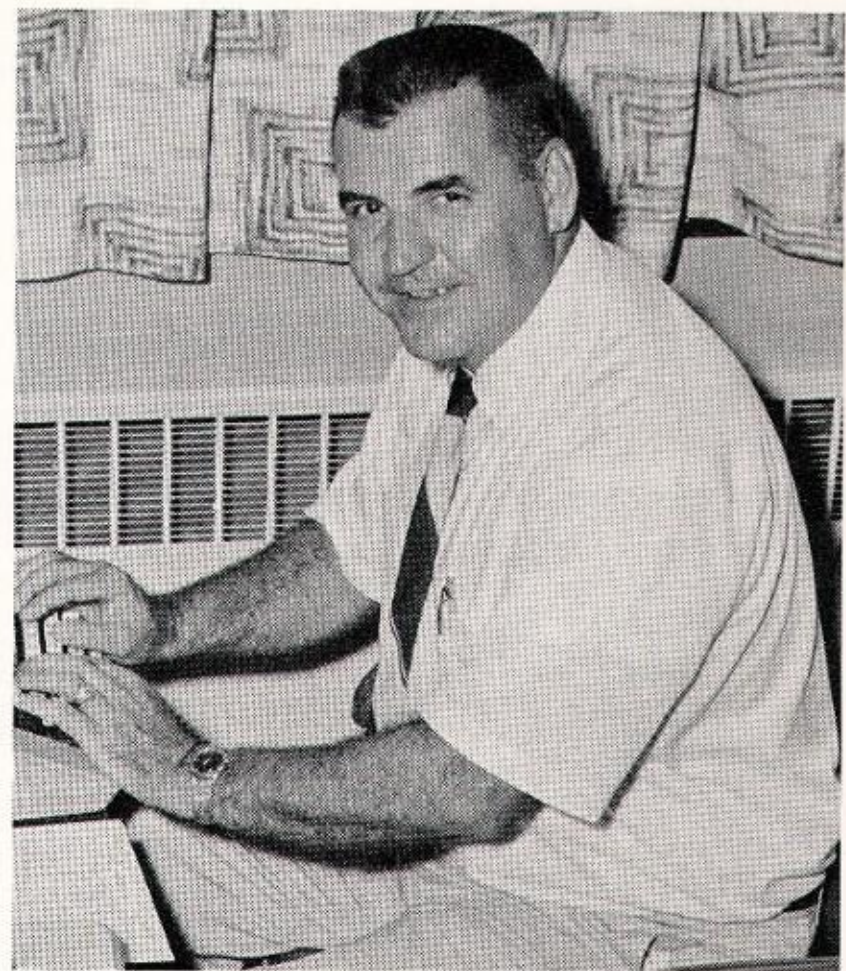

While many changes were being reflected throughout the school during the 1968-1969 school year at Hamilton Heights, there were no changes in the familiar faces of those who guided and administered to the needs of the school. The school board members again devoted many hours toward fulfilling the needs of the community through its school operations. Mr. Dallas Hohnstreiter served as superintendent of the School Corporation, and Mr. Thomas McConnell continued in his role as principal of the high school. All worked in harmony to continually better the educational opportunities of all youth in this school community.

Mr. McConnell, principal, was assisted in the front office by very capable persons. Mrs. Barbara Cook, besides her secretarial duties, was treasurer of the school and spent many hours collecting, counting, and depositing the money received through all school organizations. Mr. Marvin Atkins, principal of Arcadia Elementary School, assisted when needed in his capacity as assistant high school principal. Mrs. Norma Perry, guidance director, performed valuable counseling and testing services for all students.

Innovations transformed Language Department

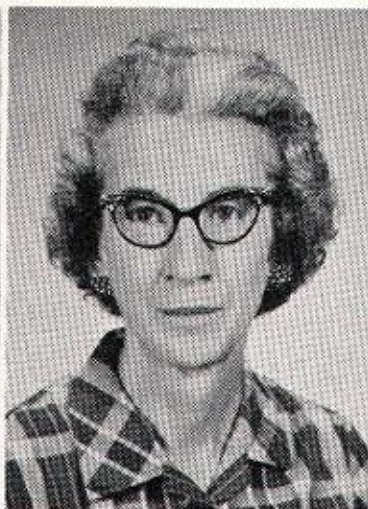

New ideas, new courses, and new books transformed the Language Department of Hamilton Heights. English and literature were not mandatory courses for seniors this year. Only interested and college-bound students steeped themselves in senior composition and English literature. For those students who enjoyed foreign languages, Latin III and French III were added to the curriculum. To help students develop poise, diction, and good habits when speaking before a group, speech was offered. Journalism was another new subject; during this period the school newspaper, the Husky's Howl, was created. To find interesting news, to report news correctly, and to meet the paper's deadline were the main objectives of the journalism class. With these innovations, the Language Department greatly advanced.

To help sophomores become well versed in their own language, Mrs. Stone discusses the fundamentals of English.

In French III, Kathy McConnell studies French words and customs.

Pupils studied world, U.S. in Social Studies

In social studies, students learned about American government and history, world history and foreign countries, and behavior patterns of people. To become responsible citizens, the seniors discussed the processes of American government and economics. During the presidential campaign, the government classes surveyed the issues, held debates, and voted for the candidates of their choice. Juniors traced the progress of their American forefathers in U. S. History. Freshmen studied the nation from the ice age to present times in World History. Geography students supplemented their knowledge of foreign countries. In sociology, students, by conducting public opinion polls and studying social problems, analyzed man's relationship to others. Social studies played an important role in developing students' understanding of the world, the United States, and themselves.

Besides studying the Constitution of the United States, government students keep up to date on current events.

Students discovered stimulating new worlds

Most students who enrolled in a science course—be it general science, Biology I or II, chemistry, physics, or science investigation and research—found that science can be truly interesting and even fun, despite the hard work involved. In general science, students learned the basics of science. Biology I and II provided fresh insights into all life forms—from the simple paramecium to the most complex organism, man. Chemistry students memorized symbols and valences and learned to use the slide rule and balance equations. Studying matter and energy kept the physics class busy all year. Three seniors who exhibited particular interest and skill in the scientific field were given a relatively free hand in the new science investigation and research course.

Mathematics scholars delved into the complex

After studying the theories of Algebra II and working many problems, Richard Fulton tests his knowledge by taking an examination.

In mathematics, students probed into the challenging realm of numbers, formulas, and symbols. Under the supervision of Mrs. Wood, students learned the basic fundamentals of Algebra I and prepared themselves for Algebra II. Learning to use the compass to figure the area of a circle and learning when to apply memorized formulas created problems for geometry scholars. After studying trigonometry under Mr. Harvey for one semester, advanced mathematics students spent the following semester learning calculus.

Students enrolled in

Students enrolled in business courses found themselves confronted by facts, figures, and definitions. Shorthand proved to be a challenge, mastered only after much practice. Most students taking Bookkeeping I and II completed their long-term projects after hours of work, followed by checking balances. After learning basics in Typing I, Typing II students gained speed and experience. General Business and Business Law gave students the opportunity to study the legalities of the business world.

Many musicians developed their talents in band and chorus, while college-bound students studied composers in music appreciation. During the year, the band boosted school spirit by playing at pep sessions, providing music for convocations, and entertaining at ball games. In chorus, sounds of silence did not exist. Besides singing in class, the chorus caroled during the Christmas season, presented choral festivals, and performed at convocations. In music appreciation and theory, new courses, students studied the styles of composers, learned the difference between jazz and Lydian measures, and composed melodies. Band, chorus, music appreciation, and theory offered students a well-rounded education in the field of music.

P.E. and Health developed minds and bodies

Physical education students devoted their classtime to making themselves physically fit. Sophomores and Freshmen toned muscles by exercising, improved their agility by tumbling, and learned good sportsmanship through participation in sports.

Besides developing their bodies, Sophomores learned organ functions in health class. Students studied anatomy, first aid, and physical and mental health in the one-semester course.

Students gained modern vocational training

Home Economics girls not only learned the basic skills of sewing and cooking but also delved into such interesting areas as interior decorating, home management, and child care. These skills can be applied in the girl's future, whether it be as a housewife or a career girl.

In agriculture classes, students learned new and modern methods of farming. They kept detailed records of crop yields and livestock production and learned to accurately judge the many farm products.

Skills were formed through experience

The Industrial Education Department offered many interesting courses; these included auto mechanics, drafting, graphic arts, electricity, woods, and metals. Through the use of the many tools and modern equipment in the department, the student could become very knowledgeable in a specific area. Skills taught in these areas prepared students for later life, whether on the job or at home.

Students created inspiring art in all forms

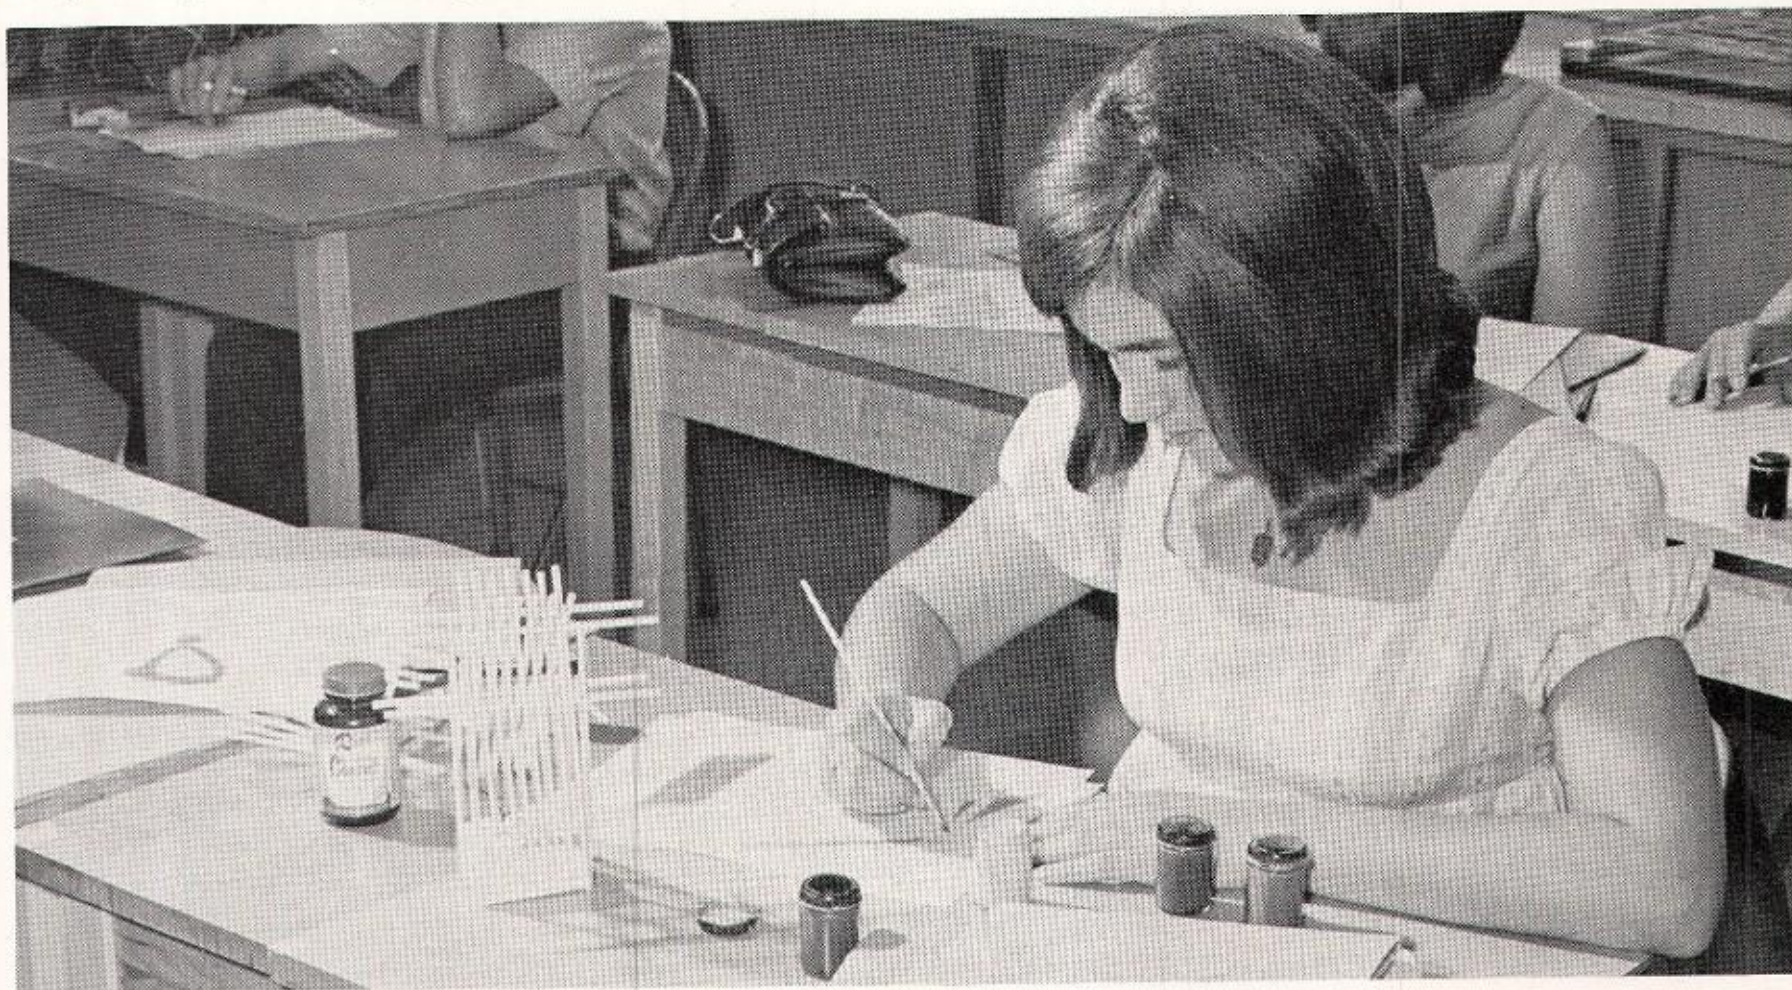

To learn more about art, Clairelane Crawford and Kathy Miller create abstract designs.

Art students learned about the four visual elements of art: line, shape, light and dark, and color. In the more advanced forms of art, the four basic elements of design were learned: unity, balance, rhythm, and proportion. Many hours were spent on sketches, and completed drawings were finally displayed; much experience and skill were gained in making the four required sketches. Color and design played an important part in the art student's life.

Robert D. Ramsey: teacher, sponsor, friend

Students always enjoyed class time with Mr. Ramsey.

Mr. Ramsey, a graduate of Butler University, began teaching in Jackson Central Junior High School in January, 1960. His teaching in the high school began in the fall of that same year. He taught in the Jackson Central and Hamilton Heights school systems each year since then except the school year 1963-64. The subjects Mr. Ramsey taught were Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and Physical Science. He sponsored the Chema-Physa-Sci Club and the Chess Club. He was named Head of the Science and Mathematics Departments and worked with the teachers in those departments to better coordinate the junior and senior high school programs. He introduced a new course, Science Investigation and Research, for advanced students of science who wished to conduct individual research under his supervision. He was an outstanding teacher, always dedicated to the young people he taught. He died on July 26, 1968.

reflections of friendship

Senior Class of 1969 was first to complete

Seniors wearing their long awaited cords discuss plans for the senior trip.

The Class of 1969 was the first class to complete a full four years at Hamilton Heights. From 1965 to 1969 class members stocked their memories with happenings to recall in the future. Although each year was exciting, perhaps the senior year was more so. With three years of experience, seniors assumed more leadership and responsibility in clubs and school functions. They retired from most money-making projects but kept busy with such activities as the senior class play, homecoming smorgasbord, and senior trip. They also sold Heritage subscriptions, designed senior cords, and applied for jobs and college entrance. By the end of the year, the seniors were prepared and ready to start building their futures.

CHARLES RAY CORDLE, a member of the 1969 senior class, was killed in an automobile accident on Sunday, October 6, 1968. Charlie was sports editor for the Husky's Howl and a member of the high school chorus. He played baseball during his freshman year; he was also a member of the 1968 football team. He played basketball three years and was a member of the Lettermen's Club.

Diligent Juniors began money-making campaign

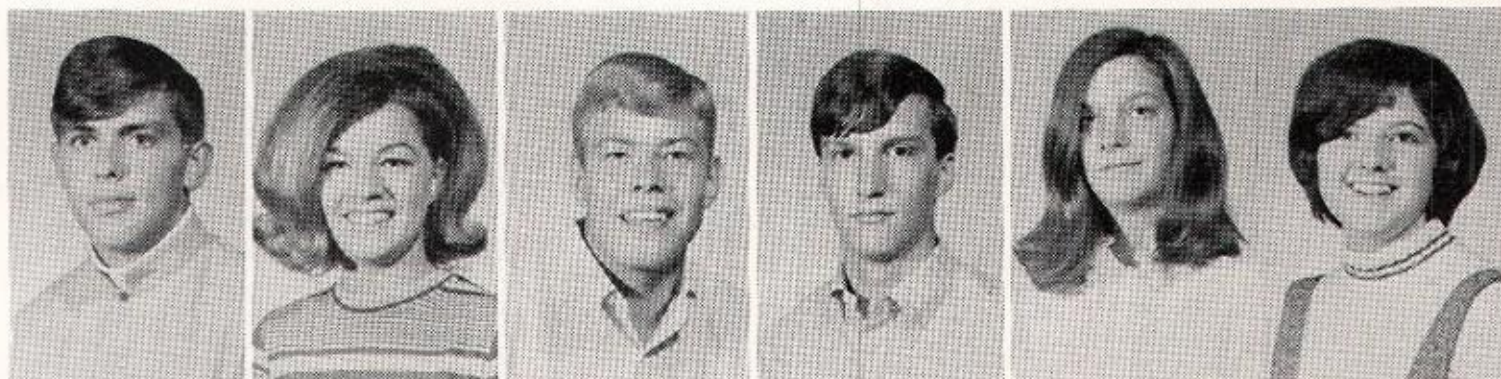

At Hamilton Heights the junior year always has proved to be the busiest. Juniors found this true as they spent the year raising money for their senior trip, taking college entrance exams, and making plans for the future.

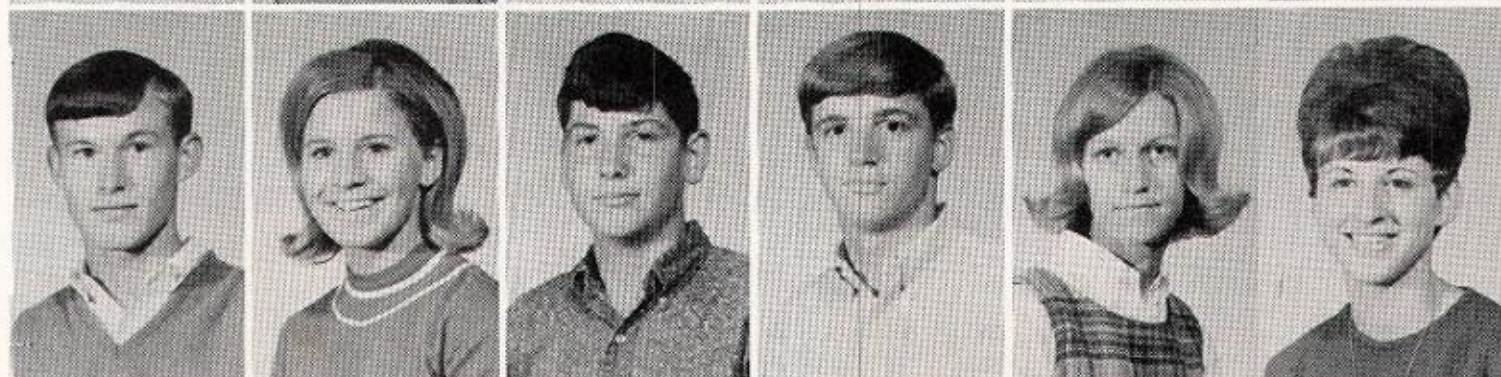

To start their money-making campaign, juniors rang doorbells and bedeviled friends and relatives during the traditional magazine sales. Concessions and after-game soc hops also helped increase their earnings. Juniors invented new ways to make money — they sold Husky pins and peddled balloons during the Football Homecoming. By the end of the year, the juniors had earned a large portion of their financial goal.

To be a sophomore meant to move up the educational ladder, assume more responsibilities, and order precious class rings.

Sophomores walked the halls of Hamilton Heights with more confidence than they did in the year before. Instead of one elective, they had two, and they were eligible to join more clubs.

One of the biggest thrills of the sophomore year was ordering class rings. Trying to decide which style, stone, and size created great problems. Another high honor shared by the class of '71 was winning first place for their Homecoming float. This was the second consecutive year they have received this award.

To win first place in the Homecoming float competition requires creativity. Sophomores show this quality in their first-prize winning float, "Keep 'em in the Tee Pee."

Adjusting to high school created many problems for the freshmen. Some lost their way at first; others couldn't open their lockers. But freshmen contributed to school spirit, showed true pride in their class, and added curiosity to the atmosphere of Hamilton Heights.

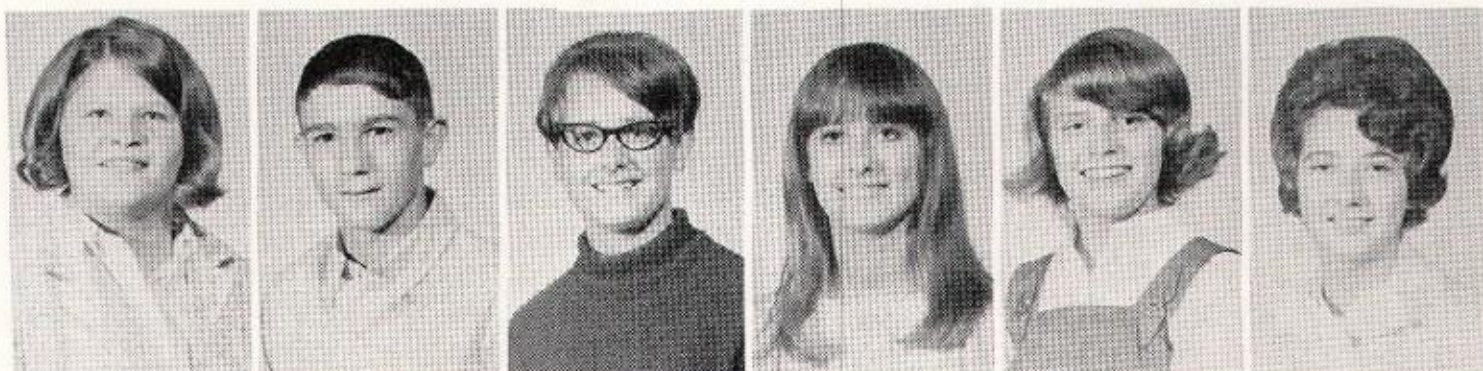

Freshmen were challenged by new subjects. Algebra and biology, along with several other courses, were unfamiliar to them. Building a Homecoming float was a new endeavor for the class of '72. Many trips back to the drawing board were made before the finished product was produced. Although the seniors didn't harrass the freshmen, members of this class did avoid the upperclassmen. By the end of the year, the freshmen had gained confidence, wisdom, and respect.

Learning and opening combinations prove to be a big chore for freshmen. Judy York displays her agility at manipulating her locker.

Student Council provides capable leadership

Council members Marianna Haddock, Luckie Carey, Mike Hilton, and Debbie Cook consider suggestions made by students.

Providing a responsible student government was the objective of the Student Council during the year. The Council supervised election of class officers, cheerleaders, and new Student Council members. Football Homecoming and Basketball Coronation plans and activities kept the Council members busy. Student Council members exchanged places with Council members from other area schools to get fresh ideas for Hamilton Heights. A suggestion box placed in the hall gave the student body the opportunity to call Council members' attention to changes needed in their own school.

Honor Society set high ideals for students

Melissa Coverdale and Dan Stover count money collected by Honor Society members for retarded children's homes.

Because of the high standards of scholarship, leadership, character, and service necessary for induction into Honor Society, most students regarded membership highly. To further these high standards the Honor Society sponsored the "Student of the Month," an award given to an outstanding boy or girl each month. As a service project, members collected money a few weeks before the holidays to buy Christmas gifts for those in nearby retarded children's homes. Honor Society members visited Clowes Hall to see a Broadway play. The final activity was induction of new members in an impressive ceremony.

Language Clubs researched foreign cultures

In the Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y clubs, members strived to create and maintain high standards of Christian character through several projects. To learn more about the legislative process and how to improve Indiana's government, the Tri-Hi-Y participated in a Youth and Government Model Legislature. By selling candy the Hi-Y made money to help underprivileged people in foreign countries. Together the clubs sponsored Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter Convocations.

Through the Latin and French Clubs, students explored historic and contemporary customs of other countries. In the Latin Club a more thorough knowledge of Roman life, history, and literature was promoted. Members watched home movies from Europe and met with a foreign exchange student. Interest in the French people, culture, and language was created in the French Club. A French foreign exchange student visited the club.

Members of the HERITAGE staff found that making a yearbook involved hours of work — beginning in July when Editor Pat Spidel and Copy Editor Melissa Coverdale went to Indiana University to learn the techniques of making a yearbook and continuing to the last deadline in February. Scheduling and taking pictures, identifying all students, drawing layouts, writing and rewriting copy, proofing, and indexing played a big part in making the yearbook — all in anticipation of the delivery date in May.

Howl Staff greatly improved school newspaper

"The improbable we'll do today, the impossible will have to wait until tomorrow." This was the motto of the HUSKY'S HOWL staff. The purpose of the paper was to inform and to interpret happenings around the school and community. The staff was kept busy interviewing news sources, taking pictures, and making layouts. They also set up their own dark room for developing pictures. Jackets and sweatshirts were sold by the staff to earn the money for purchasing an IBM Executive electric typewriter.

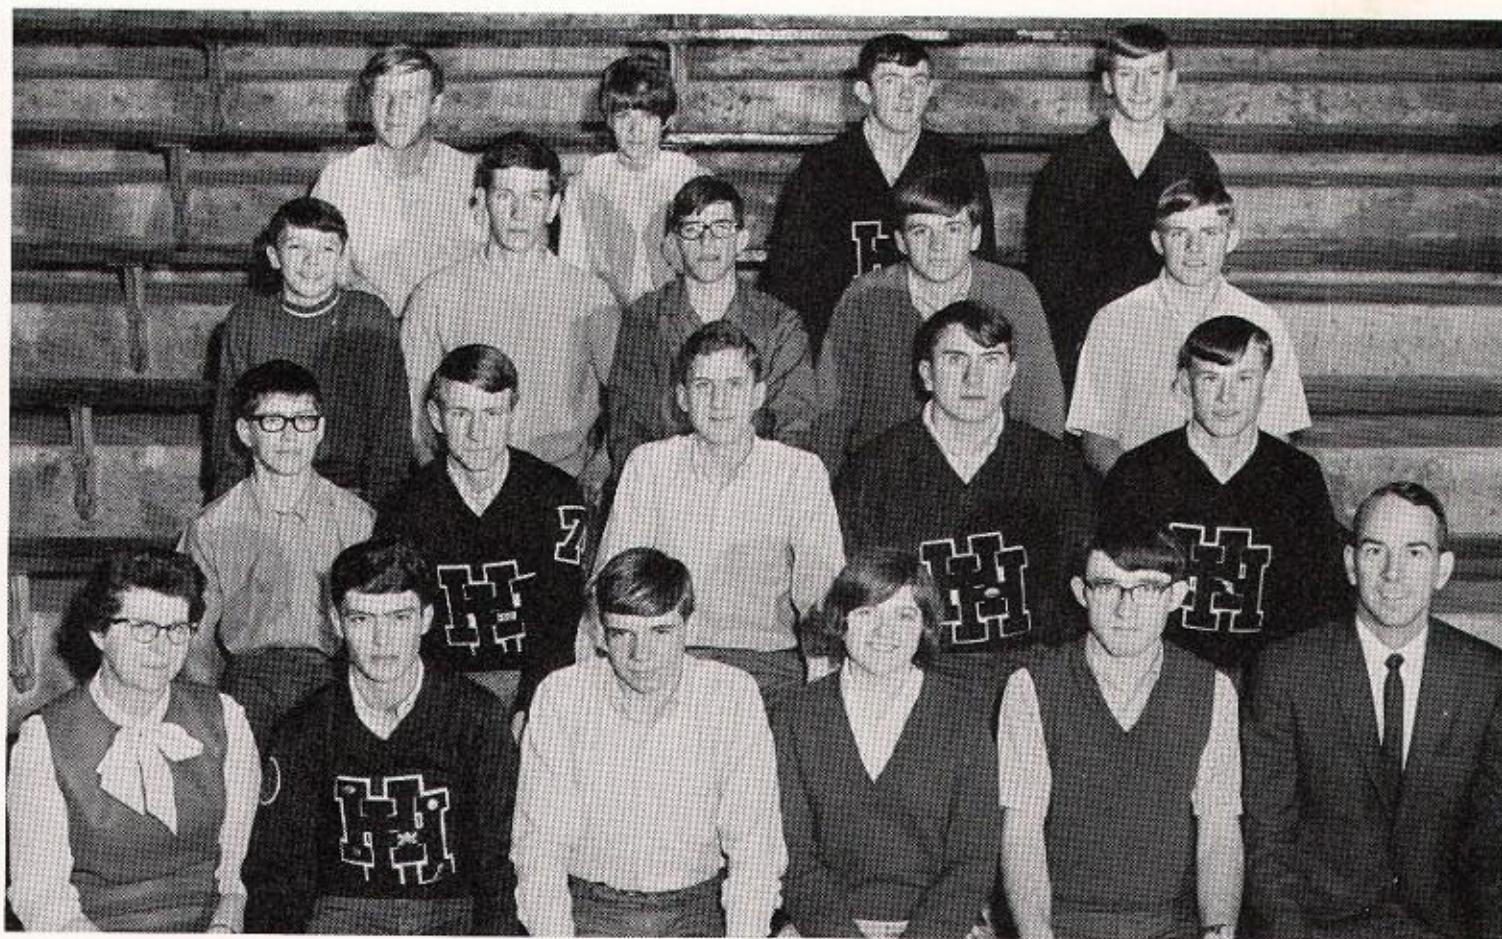

Becky Wallace finds the new typewriter speeds her work.

Promoting further interest in mathematics was the purpose of the Math Club. This year the club endeavored to achieve its goal through several projects. On Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, members tutored students who were having trouble in math. The Math Club also participated in the State Mathematics Contest; members and non-members practiced on Tuesdays and Thursdays to prepare for the contest examination.

Students who were interested in studying man and his social environment joined the Social Studies Club. To learn about world affairs, club members attended a Model United Nations in Anderson. In the spring the club toured the State House.

To promote a better understanding and appreciation of art, members of the Art Club worked many hours making our school and community more attractive to the eye. They filled their display case with works of art. They decorated the cafeteria in keeping with each holiday and special occasion. They not only decorated the front school windows and each classroom door at Christmas time but also painted Christmas designs and scenes on the windows of the downtown businesses. Members prepared the letters for the roster of the home and visiting basketball teams and made special signs for the booster clubs.

Clubs sent chest to servicemen in Viet Nam

To promote high standards of craftsmanship, scholarship, and safety and to explore industry and the American industrial civilization were among the purposes of the Industrial Arts Club. Students visited many industries to acquaint themselves with the modern industrial plant. Club members also built a chest for the Red Cross Club to use in sending items to the servicemen in Viet Nam.

The Junior Red Cross, in their efforts to help the needy, collected clothing for persons in the Appalachian disaster which occurred this year. They sent a chest filled with books and needed items to our servicemen in Viet Nam, and they also made tray favors for the Veterans' Hospital at Marion.

To learn how to play chess and for the art of chess, students joined the Chess Club. In the spring the club held a school tournament.

In GAA, physical fitness and girls' participation in sports in and out of school were promoted. Their activities included playing basketball, jumping on the trampoline, and bowling at Tipton. They sponsored a slumber party and ran the coat check during the basketball season.

Booster Club girls listen attentively as Junior Varsity cheerleaders teach them a new yell.

Great spirit was added to competitive sports at Hamilton Heights by the Girls' and Boys' Booster Clubs. With a large combined membership, the Booster Clubs showed the Huskies that their school was backing them all the way.

Besides boosting enthusiasm and building spirit, the girls learned many new yells, chants, songs, and rhythms in their regular meetings. Their brown and white cheerblock shirts enabled them to make letters at the games.

Good organization helped the boys tremendously; they learned chants, dressed in blue jeans and dark sweaters, made huge signs, and strived to promote and maintain sportsmanship during athletic competition.

Together the band and chorus presented a Christmas Concert and the spring musical, "Bye, Bye, Birdie." In January the chorus participated in the District Music Contest and went on to state competition. At half time of home basketball games, the color corps presented the colors and performed dance routines.

The Juniors gained much experience in salesmanship by selling various types of magazines. All students who sold at least $100 worth were awarded special prizes.

"I pledge my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service, and my health to better living, for my club, my community, and my country." The four-leaf clover symbolized the head, heart, hands, and health used by all young persons enrolled in the 4-H program. Thank you

The 1969 HERITAGE has been produced with the help and cooperation of many people. Unfortunately, it is impossible to thank each person individually for his time and patience. I would like to express a sincere thank you to Mr. Edward Bowers and Tower Studio for the special assistance they gave, to Mrs. Esther Day for her help and guidance, and to all of the other people who helped in any way to make this book possible.
